Center of Fight

Percy Gazley Says Trespass Is Made Upon Accord Land

Appears Before Board of Supervisors; Protesters; Matter Referred to Committee

Percy Gazley of Accord, owner of property which will be necessary for the new bridge over the Tontut at Accord, appeared before the Board of Supervisors Monday evening and protested the treatment which he claims he is being given by the Rights of Way Committee, the contractor's representative and others connected with the project.

Gazley said he had been visited by the Rights of Way Committee and an offer of a "small sum" had been made. It is the contention of Gazley that 100 years ago a covered bridge stood up stream from the present bridge and in 1904 that bridge was replaced by the present iron bridge which the town built downstream. Title to the Gazley land runs from the "middle of the road" and it is Gazley's contention that a portion of his land was taken in 1904 for the new bridge without payment and that since his title runs to the middle of the old road, there has already been an encroachment upon his land.

Gazley said he had been accused of stopping condemnation proceedings to acquire lands for the new approach but this he denied. He said he was in favor of a new bridge, which is needed, but he contended he desired compensation for property taken which would be fair. The offer which he received for the land to be taken he told the board would not pay for the price of a new curb. He said he had a title to the middle of the old road and the rest of the land in excess of what had been offered for the land. In addition he said a strip of land from 20 to 36 inches in width would be taken along his line.

Already an elm tree valued at $430 has been cut by the contractor, he said, although he had warned the contractor to keep off his lands. Gazley said a representative of the contractor had discussed renting the rear of his lot for the storage of machinery and equipment. At the time this matter was discussed and Gazley agreed to rent the lot, he said, the contractor's representative had agreed not to begin work on the bridge which is in dispute until an agreement had been arrived at.

Now Gazley said the contractor was threatened to start work if the county or state does not settle the boundary dispute. The contractor's representative has already entered upon his land and cut down the tree and excavated considerable earth at a site where a temporary cribbing is to be built. This work had been prohibited by Gazley, he said Monday. The state had told the contractor to cease all work on his side of the road.

As to the condemnation proceedings, Gazley said he had not been responsible for halting this proceeding. This was due to a fault of the county attorney. He had tried to get together with the county attorney and Committee

Nazism's Return Is Seen; French Take Resistance Step to Move

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP)—Is the old spirit of German nationalism on the march again?

Western Allied officials in Berlin have been piling up a file of evidence that points that way.

"The bugaboo of Communism may soon have to take a back seat. There's competition around," an American political authority commented today.

All four occupation powers—Britain, France, Russia and the U. S.—appear to be sensitive to the rebirth of the old Elmsmark creed of "Germany for the Germans."

Recent examples of this are: In London, member of Parliament Brigadier Frank Medlicott said "signs of the return of Nazism in Germany are increasing."

In Washington, Chief War Crimes Counsel Telford Taylor asserted the Germans are trying to "soft pedal" the war crimes trials behind a rising nationalism.

In Paris, the French have consistently resisted proposals to halt dismantling of German industry which they call war potential.

In Ottawa, Canada, Field Marshal Lord Wavell forecast that Germany would eventually become a greater problem for the West than the Soviet Union. He said the Germans are the "most dangerous people in Europe."

The Russians, flitting with ex-Nazis to win political strength, run into old German stubbornness only this month. They gave civil rights back to former Nazis, then ordered the Communist puppet government they set up in the eastern zone to install Communist ideas. Immediately the former Nazis, banded together within the National Democratic Party, lashed out against turning private enterprise into so-called people-owned industries.

Spirit Acknowledged
On top of that, the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party acknowledged the existence of the "nationalist" spirit within its own ranks and ordered a widespread purge. They called it "Titoism."

How much of the growing "nationalist" spirit within the ranks of the "ism" was around long before Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito broke with the Kremlin.

How much of the growing German spirit of independence is "nationalist" and how much is pure Nazi is a matter of debate. However, almost any major Nazi who has escaped trial for war crimes up to now can face most German courts without too much fear, unless he is personally linked with an individual war crime.

The relaxed attitude toward ex-Nazis is shown by the recent conviction of Gertrud Scholz-Klink, head of Adolf Hitler's League for German Women.

A French zone German court found her a "major Nazi" but said that the 18 months she had already spent in jail awaiting the trial was enough punishment.

Her opposite number, Balbur Von Schirach, is serving 20 years in Spandau prison. The sentence was imposed by the International War Crimes Court at Nuremberg in 1948 for his activities as head of the Hitler Jugend (Hitler Youth).

Only last night a group calling itself "Friends of Otto Strasser" tried to hold a political rally in Dusseldorf on the Rhine. The Dusseldorf occupation authorities forbade the meeting. Strasser was one of the seven men with Hitler who founded the Nazi party. He has been a refugee in Canada since he broke with Hitler but has tried repeatedly to return to Germany.

Preventing Return
Strasser was quoted recently as saying the occupation powers are preventing his return "knowing full well that in a few years time we would be the strongest party in Germany."

Strasser and his brother, Gregor, who was liquidated by the SS, represented the extreme Nationalist Right Wing in German political thinking.

Rightist parties have won the largest support in West Germany. The Bonn republic is dominated by Christian Democrats, but they need and get voting help from Rightist Free Democrats and the Nationalistic "German Party" in order to outrank the Socialists.

The Bonn legislative halls have been ringing with more and more speeches on behalf of Germanism. One delegate proposed recently to restore the Hitler-engineered "Anschluss" with Austria (Hitler's bloodless coup which brought Austria into the Nazi camp in 1938).

In Austria, too, a swing to Nazi Rightist thinking was recorded in its national elections a month ago. The People's Party retained dominance over the Socialists, but the Neo-Nazi League of Independents appeared out of nowhere to gain a surprisingly strong third.

Rhinebeck High Student Is Killed

Rhinebeck, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—Edwin L. Regg, 17-year-old high school student was accidentally shot to death by his 15-year-old brother, David, in a hunting accident yesterday.

Dr. L. Edward Cotten, Dutchess county medical examiner, said the two youths were deer hunting in the woods only a couple of miles from their home when in some manner, the younger brother's gun, which he was carrying in his arm, discharged. Edwin was struck in the right shoulder. Dr. Cotten said death was almost instantaneous.

Lipsett Begins Excavation Work For City Water Line

Sewer Is Progressing, Pipe Is Being Laid, Says Engineer for Contract

Lipsett Inc., of New York, contractor for the Broadway crossing project, today began excavating for relocation of a city water line from Clinton avenue to Broadway.

Work on the sewer line excavation on the street from Wilbur avenue to Broadway has been in progress for several days and the first pipe is now being laid. James H. Dempsey, engineer for the contractor, said today.

Workers broke through the top of the old trolley tunnel under railroad avenue, the start of the project and from the other excavations is being used to close the abandoned subway.

The sewer line on Greenkill avenue will replace the present trunk line on Henry street when it is completed. It will come into Broadway at the level of the proposed express, and the excavation which is only eight feet deep will be considerably deeper at that point.

The water line will be under the sidewalk on Greenkill avenue and will also conform to the underpass level at Broadway. The project, according to the contractor's schedule, will not start until about March 15. This will be the major excavation project and will bring Broadway under the railroad at a six percent grade from both the Cedar and Frederick street sides.

The project, from here on, also includes the raising of several more buildings, construction of the railroad overpass and one extending over Broadway from Greenkill to Railroad avenue, and the building of several temporary streets on the rim of the project.

Greenkill avenue is currently closed to through traffic from Broadway to Wilbur avenue and completely closed from Wilbur to Clinton avenue.

Inmate Found Dead

Beacon, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—John Doyle, 66, an inmate for 22 years, was found dead today in a ward at the Mattawoman State Hospital. Dr. John F. McNeil, director of the hospital, said the man was found with a sheet around his neck. One end of the sheet was tied over a bar and the body was slumped against a radiator. Dr. McNeil said death appeared due to hanging. Doyle was committed in 1927 from Brooklyn where he was under indictment on a second-degree forgery charge.

Boy Pleads Innocent
Portland, Me., Nov. 22 (AP)—A 18-year-old Portland boy pleaded innocent in Municipal Court today to a charge of manslaughter in the shooting death of his girl friend, aged 16, Franklin Delano Wade, a curly haired lad who quit high school only two weeks ago, because of shooting attractive Katharine E. Furber, a neighbor's daughter. The shooting occurred in a Furber home bedroom.

Byrnes Attacks Spending, Asks Tax and Debt Drops

Bloom, Miss., Nov. 22 (AP)—A former "cabinet" officer made a sharp attack on government fiscal policies last night and called for a drop in taxes and the national debt.

In his second assault on the Truman administration, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes told the Southern Governors' Conference that federal taxes and the public debt constitute the real trouble now besetting this country.

The cure, added the former administration stalwart, was to be found neither in a larger public debt nor in a heavier tax load, but in no immediate remedy.

Default spending will continue, he declared.

Byrnes' first attack on the administration came in a recent speech at Washington and Lee University. There, he charged the federal government with "statism," with taking over more and more the powers and prerogatives of local governments.

Last night he told the South's chief executives:

"We should devote to cutting expenditures some of the thought we are devoting to taxing and borrowing. But cutting expenditures is not seriously considered by the executive departments and new taxes will not be seriously considered in Congress. So default spending will continue," Byrnes said.

20 Bodies Are Recovered in Plane Wreck

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 22 (AP)—Police announced today they recovered 26 bodies from the wreckage of a Dutch plane which had carried 28 Jewish refugee children and seven adults. The police said one child is known to have survived.

There was only the slightest chance that there were any more survivors, the rescue parties reported.

The searchers found the twin-engine DC-3 transport after searching since Sunday through the dense forests of southern Norway. It was lost en route from Tunis, North Africa, to Norway with 28 undernourished refugee children, three nurses and four crewmen.

The plane smashed into the forest, cutting a broad swath through the trees. The front part of the chartered Aero Holland craft was badly damaged, but the rear section was said to have been almost intact. As rescue workers went through the wreckage, they reported they could hear faint, feeble cries.

It was reported that the lone survivor was a 12-year-old boy.

Several bodies were found strewn about in the dense woods.

The plane was found near Filtvet, a small town on the west side of the Oslo fjord, about 80 miles from the Norwegian capital. The nearest house to the crash scene is almost two miles away, and apparently its occupants did not hear the explosion when the plane crashed.

Even though hopes were slim for any more survivors, squads of Norwegian soldiers and police were sent to reinforce those at the scene, a hilly, heavily forested place difficult to penetrate.

The child who survived was taken to a hospital at Drammen, 20 miles from Oslo, police said, and a doctor there was quoted as saying the boy has a good chance of recovery.

The boy, one of the pitifully underfed refugee children who had been on their way to rest and rehabilitation in Norway, speaks French, officials said, but it was impossible for the time being to persuade him to tell his name.

All the children had been destined eventually to go on to Israel, the Jewish state.

A vast hunt for the plane had been under way since Sunday. About 2,200 volunteer searchers had stumbled through tangled forests of south Norway seeking the plane.

Coplon-Gubitchev Trial Is Postponed Until December 27

Engineer's Attorney Given Time to Prepare for Trial; to Review Immunity

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—The spy conspiracy trial of Judith Coplon and Valentin Gubitchev was postponed today until Dec. 27.

The Russian engineer's newly retained attorney, Abraham L. Pomerantz, won the postponement when he told Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan, he needed the time to prepare himself for the trial.

Pomerantz told the court that he wanted to explore the possibility that his client should be accorded diplomatic immunity.

Gubitchev himself has advanced this contention several times in court and it was one of the points on which he based his decision not to employ counsel. The Soviet engineer changed his mind only last week and retained Pomerantz.

In granting the delay, Judge Ryan told attorneys for both defendants:

"You must be ready on the 27th (of December) to begin trial."

The court ruled that all motions must be ready by Dec. 27, and indicated that only disposition of pre-trial motions might cause a further postponement.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals turned down yesterday Miss Coplon's plea for a stay of the trial pending decision on her appeal from a decision by Judge Ryan.

Miss Coplon, former Department of Justice employee, is appealing a ruling that her arrest, Gubitchev's and seizure of documents from her handbag last March 4 were legal, although (Continued on Page 19, Col. 5)

Heavy Federal Outlays Will Bolster U. S. Business

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Business activity will be bolstered by increasingly heavy federal outlays through the first half of 1950, the Commerce Department predicted today.

In overspending its income by about $5,000,000,000, the government will be adding to income of individuals and corporations and thus stimulating them to re-spend, a department analysis said.

The department's monthly "survey of current business" also saw a spur to business in backlogs of orders for steel, coal and aluminum by business firms whose inventories dwindled during the strikes.

It figured cash outlays of the government—as distinguished from bookkeeping figures in the budget—at $48,500,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Of that, it said, $27,000,000,000 will be spent on goods and services—a higher level than that attained in any time during the past three years.

Since government payrolls—counted as "services"—are running about $10,200,000,000 a year, that indicated outlays on materials

Hungary Announces Arrest Of Two as Spies, Saboteurs

Firemen Will Get State Certificates Those Who Have Finished Course to Be Honored at Special Program

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 22 (AP)—Hungary announced today it had arrested Robert Vogler, an American businessman, and Edgar Sanders, a Briton, on charges of spying and sabotage.

Vogler is an assistant vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company and its eastern European representative, with headquarters in Vienna. Sanders represents the company in Budapest.

Hungary also announced the arrest of Imre Geiger, managing director of Standard Electric Co., Ltd., of Budapest, a subsidiary of I.T.T. He, too, is held on a spy charge.

The Hungarian Foreign Office yesterday denied it knew anything about reports of the arrest of Vogler, who disappeared Friday morning during a business trip to the Hungarian capital.

The Hungarian government announcement said Vogler and Sanders had confessed to sabotage and spying.

In Vienna, Vogler's wife said Hungarian agents had been shadowing her husband. Reports there said the files of the I.T.T. in Budapest had been confiscated when he and a person reported to be his secretary were arrested.

Miss Vogler speculated in Vienna before the Hungarian announcement was made that her husband was being held in a Budapest jail until he agreed to sign "some sort of confession of espionage or sabotage." Other informed sources in Austria made a similar conjecture.

The communists said Geiger also had confessed and added his testimony implicated Vogler and Sanders. It said Geiger was taken while trying to flee across the border.

No details of the alleged sabotage and espionage were disclosed. Nor was the number of other persons arrested revealed.

The 38-year old Vogler has made frequent trips to Hungary from his Vienna headquarters as the roving representative of his company. I.T.T. holds an interest in the telephone factory in Budapest.

It was understood here that Vogler had checked out of his home here Friday and started for Vienna by auto and was seized en route. Sanders, however, had still been reported at liberty Monday morning.

The Hungarian communists said: "Engineer Imre Geiger, managing director of Standard Electric Co., Ltd., has been arrested while trying to cross the border illegally. He confessed to having committed large scale spying activity."

"Upon the testimony of Imre Geiger and other evidence, the State Security Office also detained Robert Vogler, an American citizen, and Edgar Sanders, a British citizen."

"They also confessed to having committed sabotage and espionage against the Hungarian People's Republic for a considerable time."

"Other members of the spying organization also were detained."

Pressure Is Likely to Be Felt Soon

Big Question Is Moscow and How Soviets Will React Toward Move Against Chinese

May Hit Program

Lack of Recognition by Nations Might Be Result

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—A score or more nations are expected to fall in line promptly with an American proposal for concerted action to free Communist General Angus Ward from a Chinese Communist jail.

Officials looked for the first responses today to the personal message asking intervention with the Peking regime. Secretary of State Acheson sent it out over the works end to the foreign ministers of 59 governments, including Russia.

The big question mark was whether Moscow and the four other Soviet bloc nations would agree to take part in the international move, which diplomats said was without precedent.

There appeared little doubt that Britain, France, and most of the others would act to bring pressure on the Communists through their representatives in China to release Ward and the four members of his staff from their four-week captivity at Mukden.

Moscow at the moment seemed to be in a more comparative mood toward the west than at times in the past. After first refusing, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko consented last week to pass on the Russian-backed Communist regime in North Korea an American demand for the release of two officials connected with the economic cooperation administration.

If Moscow says the word, officials are fairly confident that the Chinese Communists will free Ward. They believe the Communists at least would raise the treatment of Ward which Acheson denounced as a "direct violation of a basic concept of international relations which have been developed throughout the centuries."

But if Moscow takes refuge behind the familiar contention that Russia does not interfere in the "internal affairs" of any nation, the American move was calculated to have these effects:

1. Putting Russia and the Communists on the defensive before world opinion.

2. Limiting international sentiment against recognizing the new Chinese Red regime and blocking its admission into the United Nations.

Only the Soviet bloc has extended recognition thus far. But Britain, the British Commonwealth, and the United Nations are reported on the verge of American recognition and will not even be considered as long as Ward is mistreated, Acheson said.

The new American proposal went out secretly in the night—spreading demands that the government take stronger action. The American Legion, Senator Knowland (R-Calif.), and others have urged that the U. S. impose a blockade of Communist-held China ports if necessary or otherwise threaten the use of force, but indication are that it is being given serious consideration at the moment.

Senator Bridges (R-N.H.), frequent critic of the administration's policies in China, approved the Acheson message and urged Senator Jee (D-N.Y.) also approve Acheson's course of action.

The Chinese Communists have said that Ward and his staff members stand accused of beating a Chinese Officers for the coming year will be elected and all members are urged to attend.

In addition to the annual reports and the plans to be presented for future activities, an interesting evening is promised for all those attending. Two outstanding speakers, Miss Esther Schied, director of nurses, and Dr. Joseph E. Kearney, consultant dentist, will discuss programs now being carried on by the group. Refreshments will be served by the following committee: Mrs. E. E. Weiman, Mrs. L. Kreyer, Mrs. Edward Devlin and Mrs. Harvey L. Todd.

PERSONAL THANKSGIVING

Maybe this ought to be a personal Thanksgiving. In the last few years it has got to be a habit of Americans at Thanksgiving time to take a look at the rest of the world and consider how good it is to be living in this land of material plenty, political and social stability, and above all of freedom. Those advantages of life in America are just as obvious and just as good this November as in the past. But perhaps this time the Thanksgiving feast should be an occasion for considering more personal blessings.

Almost everyone has some special reason to be glad for the circumstances of his own life. And whatever his situation, it is easy to imagine that fortune might have been much less kind. Looking back over life, remembering the small things on which the course of it has hinged, a person sees that it is often no more than the breadth of a hair which separates good fortune from bad. Yet most of us in this land, not only as a people but also as individuals, have had far more than our just share of the good fortunes of life. Is it not so?

Let us each, as we gather loved ones around us on Thanksgiving Day, be grateful for them, and for all the good things of simple daily life. What of the lonely one on this day? He, too, has his memories, and can be grateful for them.

Everyone has some cause for thanksgiving. And thankfulness for the past is one of the finest states of mind possible as a start for building a good future.

*MAKING ECONOMICS EASY

A report from the Joint Council on Economic Education suggests the need for a revision of social studies programs with the idea of placing more emphasis on economics. One educator claims that not more than five per cent of the nation's high school graduates have received adequate instruction on that subject. Some progress in the right direction has been made as a result of the Council's activities during its two years of existence, but much work remains to be done.

With so many of the problems of this nation and of the world based on economics, it is important for the citizen to have a grasp of the subject. Inflation, deflation, wages, pensions, devaluation, budgets, planned economy, tariff walls—there is hardly any end to the terms which daily meet our eye, demanding an understanding of them. They need to be reduced to simpler words and phrases which all young people can understand.

These coming citizens need to know the simple common sense of handling money and what real income and real wealth are in relation to money income and money wealth. Knowing the sensible ways to handle their own affairs, they will learn how to apply their weight and votes toward common sense handling national and world affairs. A brief and simple high school course would accomplish this.

Too many factors in national life are passed by without attention because they are mentioned only in highly involved and technical language. Economics is one of the subjects in which we would all benefit by using simpler words. There is nothing beyond the powers of the ordinary citizen in it; only the fancy language makes it look as if it were beyond us.

CAN'T WIN ALL THE TIME

The voters of Boston have perhaps ended for all time the public career of Mayor James Michael Curley, who can only be described as a political phenomenon.

The 74-year-old Curley was defeated in his bid for a fifth term as mayor. Taking a licking was nothing new for him, but his age raises serious doubt that he will ever be able to try again.

The veteran Democrat ran up the following score during his career to this moment: four times elected and four times beaten for mayor of Boston; once elected and twice defeated for governor of Massachusetts; three times elected to Congress. In addition,

THE WELFARE STATE

According to Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., the theoretician of the A.D.A., the Socialist organization that hopes to absorb both the Republican and Democratic parties, this is what Alexander Hamilton believed concerning the welfare state:

The welfare state has been with us since the first administration of this government. The very phrase, welfare, refers of course to the clause in the Constitution which says that one of the businesses of the federal government is to promote and support the general welfare.

And the first person who developed this principle of using the federal government to support the general welfare was Alexander Hamilton. The various measures which Hamilton advocated as secretary of the Treasury, the national bank, the funding measures and his great report on manufactures, were all means by which the government—the power of the government—would be used to support and sustain and promote interests of special group (S.I.C.) in the population.

This was on a television program, "The Court of Current Issues." An interlocutor, Shad Poler, asked Schlesinger a couple of helpful questions which led up to this further comment by the Harvard genius.

Alexander Hamilton was in favor of the kind of welfare state which the Conservatives of this country have always supported. That is a welfare state which operated for the benefit of the business community.

Now, the essential problem of the welfare state, as of any state, is precisely how much money the government can afford to remove from the earnings of a people to provide such services as a government may wish to provide. The wish, of course, is limitless for the more numerous the services, the more numerous and immediate are the needs. Of course, as the taxes pile up, the state as well as the people becomes impoverished. Their standard of living falls. A ceiling is placed upon enterprise. The British are solving that problem with gifts from the United States. When the Socialistic rule of Britain overtakes us, we shall not have any kind of living left to slip us a little help. But that is a long way off. In a word, a nation can only spend what it can afford to spend. The alternative is bankruptcy.

This is what Alexander Hamilton had to say on the subject:

There is no part of the administration of government that requires extensive information and a thorough knowledge of the principles of political economy, so much as the business of taxation. The man who understands those principles best will be least likely to resort to oppressive exactions, or sacrifice any particular class of citizens to the procurement of revenue. It might be demonstrated that the most productive system of finance will always be the least burdensome. There can be no doubt that in order to a judicious exercise of the power of taxation, it is necessary that the person in whose hands it should be, be acquainted with the general genius, habits, and modes of thinking of the people at large, and with the resources of the country. And this is all that can be reasonably meant by a knowledge of the interests and feelings of the people. In any other sense, the proposition has either no meaning, or an absurd one.

So, the problem is costs. We shall this fiscal year, 1949-1950, have a budget with supplementary budgets and similar devices, which will run from $40,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000. That represents a deficit of from $5,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000. We shall know on July 1, 1950, what the deficit finally is. And this may shock our nation. The President, Roosevelt, who is a hole, he will be in, then, proposes more and higher taxes. He has no other solution, certainly not if he wants to create a welfare state. A government, like an individual, often over-extends and then discovers bankruptcy; there is no R.F.C. to bail out the bankrupt government on the plea that it will make work.

If the people object to more and higher taxes, they must oppose the welfare state. If they like the welfare state, they must agree to more and higher taxes every year until they work largely to pay taxes. It is as easy as that. (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

NEW GLAND TREATMENT FOR ARTHRITIS

A story is told of the late Henry Ward Beecher, the noted preacher, and Robert Ingersoll, the agnostic. Beecher showed Ingersoll a beautiful watch, studded with jewels which sounded the correct time when a little lever was raised. Ingersoll admired the watch very much, and then asked: "Who made this beautiful work of art?"

"Oh, nobody made it; it just happened," was Beecher's reply.

The above story came to my mind as I read about the new discovery for the treatment of arthritis and other diseases, developed from the pituitary gland of hogs. The pituitary gland is about the size of a large pea, lying on the floor of the skull between the eyes and between the temples. Small as it is it has two parts, anterior and posterior (front and back part), the anterior being the portion used to manufacture ACTH, also known as adrenocorticotropin, which possesses almost miraculous powers according to outstanding research physicians. ACTH is not the same as cortisone, also recently reported to be helpful in arthritis, although they are related.

I have written before about the anterior part of the pituitary gland and how its underactivity allows too much fat to be stored in certain parts of the body, resulting in large deposits of fat across the shoulders, chest, abdomen, upper arms and thighs, with no excess of fat on forearms and lower legs.

In a brochure published by Armour and Co., James L. Cony states that this anterior lobe or part of the pituitary gland produces at least six hormones or chemical messengers or workers of the body. It stimulates growth, affecting the whole body; it stimulates production of milk; stimulates the sex glands to produce sex extracts and stimulates thyroid gland to produce thyroid extract; it produces ACTH, which stimulates the adrenal glands to produce adrenal extract.

At the present time there is not enough ACTH to supply the demand of hospitals and physicians for this substance to treat arthritis and other diseases. However, as it is hoped that a method of manufacturing this pituitary gland product from other substances in large quantities for arthritis patients at a low price will soon be possible, the whole world is awaiting the outcome of the efforts of these research workers.

Curley had two spells in jail, the last on a conviction for mail fraud in 1947.

When he continued in the mayor's chair right through this somewhat embarrassing episode, it began to appear that Curley was politically indestructible. But the 1949 results make him look vulnerable after all. And they don't leave him much time to prove otherwise.

Greatest Show in Europe

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — The nation will be months recovering from the effects of the coal and steel strikes, but the disputes demonstrated one healthy fact: American industry and labor have "grown up" in their labor relations. The strikes were attended by almost no violence.

It hasn't been many years since violence and bloodshed were the rule in major strikes. As recently as May 1937, Chicago police pursued and shot down steel union pickets, killing four instantly and fatally injuring six others in the May-Day massacre at Republic Steel.

However, except for a few minor outbreaks in coal-mining areas, both management and labor recently demonstrated that the American spirit of fair play can be made to work in labor disputes. Much credit belongs to C.I.O. President Phil Murray and his steel workers for peaceful, self-policed picket lines; also to certain employers, notably the Jones and Laughlin Steel Company.

Former Admiral Ben Moreell, far-sighted president of Jones and Laughlin, saw to it that union pickets at his plants got free hot coffee, and doughnuts almost every night. Moreell also ordered that huts, equipped with electric heaters, be built for the pickets and even installed a telephone in a hut at the Allegheny, Pennsylvania, plant so the strikers could communicate with union headquarters.

Moreell also made a practice, whenever possible, of personally visiting the picket lines for a friendly chat. There was nothing patronizing about it. The salty, likable former sea dog respected the position of the strikers as much as they respected his.

There were some bright moments, too, in the swirling 32-day coal strike. In the past, most company stores shut off credit during strikes. However, this year practically all the big coal companies continued credit during the long strike. In the south, several operators provided hot meals for miners' children when they heard the youngsters were going to school without breakfast.

All in all, it was a far cry from the hot tempers and tear gas of a decade ago.

Swedish Hospitality

Those insulting digs at Swedish hospitality by junketing Senator Einar Thomas of Oklahoma contrasted with the story of another Senate subcommittee which visited Sweden at about the same time.

While Senator Thomas charged that the Swedes snubbed him, the sub-committee on Housing led by sub-Senator John Sparkman of Alabama, returned with glowing accounts of Swedish hospitality. The Sparkman subcommittee included Allen Frear of Delaware, Ralph Flanders of Vermont and John Bricker of Ohio.

Bricker proved himself a real ambassador of good will in a speech at the Stockholm city hall, lauding Sweden on its efficient housing program and the cooperation shown him and his colleagues. The white-thatched Ohlman injected some American good humor into the proceedings by denying that Senator Frear was his son—even if the Delaware Democrat did call him "Pop."

Bricker later got a big hand in Rotterdam when he remarked that he had a special reason for "feeling at home here, because my folks came from Holland in the 17th century."

Unfortunately, however this good will didn't cop the same headlines as the sensational Thomas technique of how not to win friends abroad.

Note—When the Senate group left Rotterdam, the city chimes played "Yankee Doodle." Alabama's Sparkman would have preferred Dixie, but seemed as pleased as his northern colleagues.

Fatherly Senator Bricker

There was only one thing white-haired Senator Bricker, aged 55, wanted to forget about Sweden—a certain cigarette girl in Stockholm.

After dinner one night, the girl stopped at the table where Bricker played "Yankee Doodle" and four Senator colleagues were seated.

"I'll buy a cigar for my father," announced 46-year-old Democrat Allen Frear of Delaware, nodding toward Bricker.

Do you really think I'm his father? Bricker asked the girl.

"Oh, yes, sir," said the young lady, without hesitating a moment.

Navy Flouts Johnson Again
 The last official document, signed by outgoing Admiral Denfeld, is a final slap at Secretary of Defense Johnson.

It is the annual report of the chief of naval operations to the secretary of the navy, just off the press. And by releasing it, the navy violated the spirit of Johnson's order against separate annual reports by the three services.

Last June the navy objected to the order on the ground that Congress was entitled to a separate report from each service, but the Secretary of Defense, after considering all arguments, stuck to his guns. He issued his order on August 1 in a private memo to the army, navy and air force.

"In the light of all the circumstances," Johnson wrote, "I have decided that there should be one annual report for the national military establishment."

Despite this, the navy defied Johnson's order, and issued its own annual report anyway. Theoretically it got around Johnson's order by addressing the report to the secretary of the navy. But when a representative of this column took a copy into Secretary of the Navy Matthews for comment, he was flabbergasted.

"What's this?" he asked. "I haven't seen that. Here, let me look at it."

The report was marked: "Report on your navy, Mr. Secretary. Annual report of the chief of naval operations to the secretary of the navy." Nevertheless, that was the first Secretary Matthews had seen of it.

Lustron Bubble to Break
 The lustron bubble is about to explode.

What looked like a worth-while dream to solve the nation's housing shortage overnight by mass-producing prefabricated homes, has turned into a nightmare. Millions of R.F.C. loans have been poured into Lustron, but only a trickle of ready-made houses have come out.

Now Congress has turned on the heat and Lustron is beginning to topple.

First to pull out will be the Truman cousin, Mr. Young, former R.F.C. examiner, whose wife is also one of President Truman's private secretaries. In spite of these ties, Young hasn't begged for favors for Lustron, has kept out of the lobbying end of the business. He is handing in his resignation effective December 1.

Maneuver at Present Is to Avoid Responsibility for What Occurs After December 1

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 22—A game of adroit maneuvering seems to be in progress between President Truman and John L. Lewis so that each may avoid responsibility for what happens after December 1, when the coal miners are supposed to go out on strike or continue for another few weeks a sort of truce.

On the face of things, Mr. Lewis has Mr. Truman in a spot. If the President invokes the Taft-Hartley Act powers and secures an injunction for 60 days, it will be tantamount to saying that big unionism cannot be restrained from excesses without use of the government's injunction power.

This is an argument that the administration had hoped to keep out of the hands of the groups in Congress which have been urging a retention of the injunction provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. For it would mean that the outright repeal of the law is plainly not in the public interest and that restraints must be maintained.

For a while it looked as if Mr. Lewis could rely on the President not to use the injunction process. But it was pointedly revealed by the President himself last week that he would not hesitate to invoke the injunction method because it is still the law of the land.

The law, however, doesn't compel the President to seek an injunction. It merely says he may do so whenever a crisis develops or may develop which could imperil national health and safety. By letting the United Mine Workers Union know that the injunction would be applied for if the situation became serious, Mr. Truman was telling Mr. Lewis that the next move was up to him.

Mr. Lewis, on the other hand, has been known to play poker. He will not reveal his intentions until the last minute. It has been assumed that he would not order the miners out on December 1 but would await the injunction and use it as an excuse to keep the miners at work, while at the same time denouncing the administration for using the Taft-Hartley law.

For some strange reason Mr. Lewis has not come down to en-in his conferences with the coal operators, so that they claim not to know just what he wants in a settlement. This is one reason why the Federal Mediation and Conciliation service to date has not been able to make progress and why it has reported to the White House that the parties are far apart.

Mr. Lewis could issue a statement just before December 1, saying he wanted to make the country try a Christmas present. He could then refuse to order the miners to the public convenience. He would then be ready to make some effort to bargain with the operators and reach a settlement in the interim.

If, on the other hand, the administration waits until the miners go out on December 1 and let a coal crisis develop and then apply for an injunction, the country will criticize the President as having waited too long to do his duty. Mr. Lewis will force Mr. Truman into that dilemma.

With the White House and John Lewis starting for position against the labor-union groups, it is possible for the strike situation to reach a climax after December 1. The big question is when does the emergency occur? Is it now, when the mine workers' chief says the miners should work only until December 27, is it when the union chief announces what is to happen after December 1? Can the President wait until one day before December 1 to make up his mind what to do?

The problem is a very difficult one for the President to solve. Although the labor chiefs generally want to see the Taft-Hartley Act repealed, they know Mr. Truman cannot afford to jeopardize the position with the unorganized workers as well as with many of the organized union members. They want him to stop a coal strike.

Around Washington there is a feeling that Mr. Lewis has lost this situation. It is many miners are restless and will quit on December 1 if they should be ordered out. But there's no telling what cards John L. Lewis will play—and this time it looks as if he must keep the miners at work after December 1 or face the worst defeat of his career in subsequent negotiations. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Nov. 21—Eighteen state legislatures by formal resolution have requested Congress to call a convention to start amending the Constitution to limit the income tax to 25 per cent.

The income tax and the gift tax also would be held to 25 per cent. Since their ratification of this resolution, the legislatures of Illinois and Iowa have revoked their action, leaving the score at sixteen states still on the side of limitation.

They are: Wyoming, Rhode Island, Mississippi, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Indiana, Arkansas, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Texas, Wisconsin, Alabama, Kentucky, New Jersey and New Hampshire.

The great purpose here is to revoke the absolute power of Congress to seize all the income of all the citizens and all businesses, at any time.

The amendment now proposed also considers the safety of the several states which are losing sovereignty as the federal government, with its enormous demands on the earnings of the country, nevertheless taps new sources, leaving less and less for state taxation. The federal method is to grow as much as possible and kick back some of it to the states as largess from the national government.

Senators, Congressmen, governors and other state political bosses boast to the voters of the amounts which they have wheedled out of Washington. They forget to tell, however, that the federal government didn't hog the sources of revenue which rightfully belong to the states, the states wouldn't need federal handouts. They forget to add, also, that only those who appease the federal administration in its expansion are able to deliver the handouts.

In this connection, the American Newspaper Association, a non-profit society which has received the new amendment in most cases to date, quotes from the wisdom of Franklin D. Roosevelt:

"When he was governor of New York, Roosevelt complained as follows: 'This very week, I have recommended to the legislature four sources of additional revenue. Neither I nor the legislature has any knowledge whether the federal government, a month or two hence, may or may not impose taxes on these same sources. If the state were to allocate new tax sources to the cities, counties and towns, the whole system could be destroyed by a sudden taxing of these same sources by Washington.'

During his long reign, Roosevelt reversed himself not only by higher federal taxes from new sources, which were lost to the states, but by a systematic dismemberment of the integrity and importance of the states. The Morgenthau Banking Society called the American for Democratic Action now argues viciously that the states should abandon their identity and powers to the federal government. A.D.A. even argues that the United States in turn should dissolve into a vast new world of the future. The form of government of this new world would be that of Soviet Russia for the first few years.

The totality of the congressional power over all the income of all the people and all their corporate and mutual activities, including even church revenues, has not been appreciated. Individuals confronted with the fact that they

It has a picture of the corner store, which today is the Standout Savings Bank building. They had three show windows on Broadway, and another entrance on Mill street with more show windows. This wrapping paper was printed through Forsyth & Davis, famous stationers of uptown, now also gone. List of merchandise given on both sides of the picture are: Dress goods, cloaks, suits, silk waists, hosiery, underwear, carpets, rugs, millinery, corsets, gloves, gents' furnishings, oil cloth, linoleum, window shades and matting.

E. W. who gave me the above also sent down a want ad. of the "New York Herald" Sunday, December 3, 1916. One of the ads. read: "Bookkeeper, competent in all office work, one understanding controlling accounts, typewriting and stenography; salary $18.00. Stat. details and references. P.C. box 427 Herald." I wonder what salary a gent of that calibre could demand today?

Here's another: "Stenographer, typist, with bookkeeping experience and accurate at figures; $10 to start. Good opportunity, state age and experience.—S.K. 112, Herald."

From the Theatre section: "Miss Mae Marsh is the first screen star engaged by the new Goldwyn picture corporation. She will arrive in New York, tomorrow." Also, "Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., has engaged Jack Norworth for one week only, commencing tomorrow night, for the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic, atop the New Amsterdam Theatre."

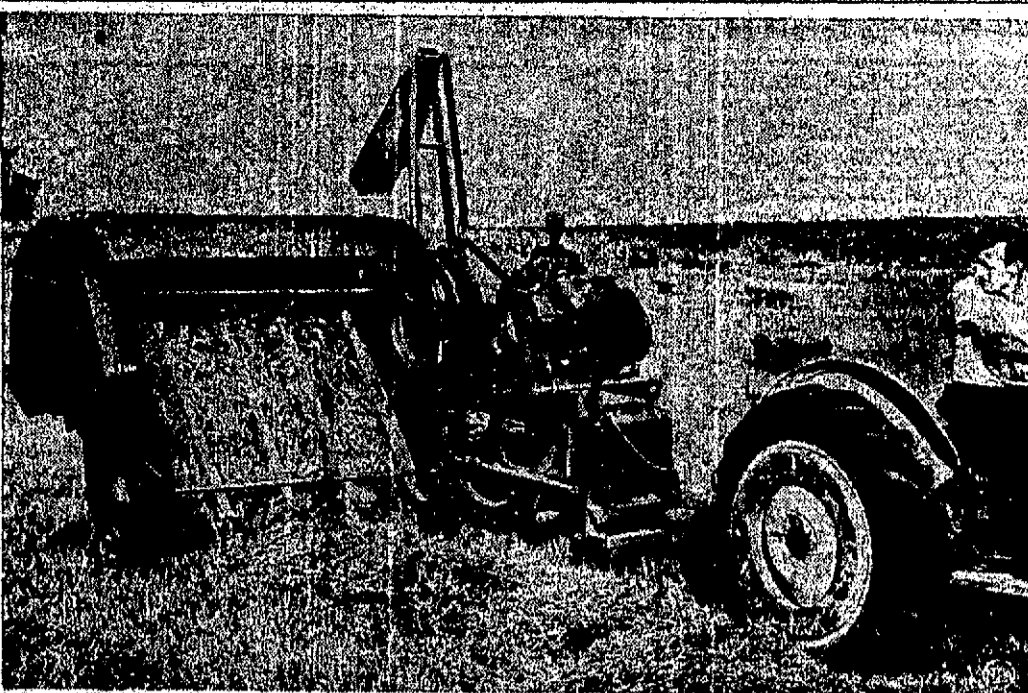

Another item reads: "Earl Carroll and bride start their Broadway roof bungalow at midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Carroll laid the cornerstone of their bungalow in the clouds on the roof of the 20th story Godfrey building, 7th avenue and 49th street, at 12 o'clock last night. On the stroke of midnight Mr. Carroll removed a spadefull of concrete, the stone was slipped into space and Mrs. Carroll broke a bottle of American wine over it. The while the members of the "So Long Lady" company sang one of Mr. Carroll's syncopated melodies and a lot more of their friends making up the "Who's who" in Broadway, applauded. The immense roof, site of the first Broadway bungalow, was illuminated by the regular stars and the towels worn by the stage stars. (Perhaps this was the first "pent-house" in New York. I wonder where the name "pent-house" came from; they certainly look more like sky-high bungalows, with the usual shrubbery around it.)

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll were married October 25. Immediately after ceremony consulted an architect and arranged for the construction of a roof bungalow. Although downtown, it still will have all the conveniences of a Long Island country place and none of the inconveniences. Though a composer, Mr. Carroll began in a practical way. He leased the roof of the Godfrey building for a term of years, and with the aid of his architect designed the house and grounds. The bungalow will be large in order to permit the young couple to entertain.

Schneiders to Hold First Anniversary In Uptown Store

Schneider's local jewelry firm, will celebrate the first anniversary of its uptown Kingston store Wednesday of this week.

The firm was founded 21 years ago by the late Gustav A. Schneider, and Son from a store at 587 Broadway. One year ago the firm purchased the building at 290 Wall street, formerly Herman's Restaurant. The Broadway store has been retained and sales are continuing from both stores.

The uptown store was completely redecorated and furnished when purchased. Since its opening a gift shop has been added along with the regular displays of jewelry, china and crystal.

Special reductions in the price of merchandise will be offered the public on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday in observance of the uptown location's anniversary. George W. Schneider, president, said today.

If your family likes hollandaise sauce serve it over corned beef hash topped with poached eggs. Green peas or buttered snap beans are good vegetables to accompany the dish.

In their classes both teams play nearly perfect football, but they aren't in the same class. Frank Leahy can employ the discipline of the old college try—if his boys don't play their hearts out, they're yanked. But Coach Paul Brown of Cleveland, just as much a perfectionist as Leahy, has the added discipline of the dollar.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

New York, (AP)—Could undefeated Notre Dame knock off one of the top professional football teams?

That has been a favorite topic this season with a number of pigskin historians of the sports pages.

Impressed by the record of 36 games without a loss rung up by the Ramblers, a number of writers have opined that the Fighting Irish could beat many play-for-pay teams. And some even have proclaimed that Notre Dame could outscore the best pro elevens.

I am no fonder of tanned pork than the average man, but if Frank Leahy's boys in green can whip the Cleveland Browns I'll be glad to eat without benefit of gravy—the football they do it with. And that is one proposition I don't mind ending with a prepositional.

In successive weeks I watched Notre Dame tar North Carolina's Tarheels, 42 to 6, and the Cleveland Browns retain the leadership of the All-America Conference by blanking the New York Yankees, 31 to 6.

They were games that demonstrated the best in amateur football and the best in professional football. And the only possible conclusion an innocent bystander could draw was: Notre Dame and the Cleveland Browns don't belong in the same gridiron any more than a lake Laffette has any business in the same ring with a Joe Louis.

In their classes both teams play nearly perfect football, but they aren't in the same class. Frank Leahy can employ the discipline of the old college try—if his boys don't play their hearts out, they're yanked. But Coach Paul Brown of Cleveland, just as much a perfectionist as Leahy, has the added discipline of the dollar.

As Pegler Sees It

have absolutely no constitutional right to retain any of their earnings have been shocked and at first incredulous. Nevertheless, the 16th Amendment, by its failure to set any limit on the income taxes, plainly holds that the American citizen is a slave to Congress. The portion of earnings which the citizen retains after he pays his income tax is his by the generosity of Congress, not by right because he earned it. Congress can take it all, Congress is the master. Only constitutional limitations can free the citizen. It is strange that the people were not alarmed by the absolute disaster to them which this amendment imposed by stealth, but they were not. They actually took no interest whatever.

The method of amendment chosen here is laborious and might take a long time. Even after two-thirds of the legislators, or 32, have requested Congress to start things going, the proposed new amendment must go back over the weary round of the states and must be approved by 35, or three-fourths of them. However, there is no time limit in the present method and this means that unless some other proposals, the 25 per cent income, estate and gift tax limitation does not lapse on some arbitrary date. The fight against prohibition often seemed hopeless. But, under determined, well-managed assault after the opposition finally got organized, Prohibition fell quickly.

The request resolution is now on the 50-yard line with the 16 ratifications out of a necessary 32. However, Illinois and Iowa seem likely to repeat their approval now, thanks to a clearing of a temporary political overcast which caused them to renege. There are about eight other states which at present seem almost ready to pass the request resolution. (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

No Prospects Yet For New Industry Coming to City

Small industries are showing interest in locating in Kingston, but as yet no definite prospects have been found, it was reported by the Chamber of Commerce following a meeting Monday night of the new industry committee.

Elmer Rylance, committee chairman, said that 10 recent industrial inquiries were discussed at the meeting, but all of them were from firms wanting modern one-story factory space ranging from 5,000 to 25,000 square feet. Such factory buildings are not available here, he said.

Although the committee has the names of eight individuals, companies and industrial financing agencies which would build factory space for responsible established concerns on a long-term lease basis, most of the recent inquiries are only interested in short-term leases, he reported. Some of the firms who have sent inquiries appear to be not interested in providing information about their financial condition, he added.

At their Monday night meeting, committee members made final plans to send out several thousand of the new Chamber of Commerce promotional brochures to leading industries in all parts of the United States.

The committee is still interested in getting the names of as many industrial prospects as possible, so that these prospects may be sent the brochure and additional data.

Those present at the committee meeting were Chairman Rylance, Byron S. Chatham, Henry Singer, S. Edward Lefren, Hugh Elwyn and Chamber President Robert E. Treets.

The season's first cold wave which intensified overnight sent the mercury to the low twenties throughout most of the county early this morning as other regions in the state, according to the Associated Press reported temperatures below 20 degrees.

Kingston's overnight low, recorded on the city engineer's thermometer in the city hall was 23 degrees while at the headworks of the Ashokan reservoir a low of 20 was recorded.

Snow and icy conditions prevailed in some sections of the state, the Associated Press said, but the only snow visible in this area of the Catskill Mountains was on the peaks of the mountains beyond the reservoir country.

At least one death was attributed to slippery highway conditions, the Associated Press said. Temperatures dropped from 30 to 15 degrees generally throughout the state, giving New Yorkers their coldest weather so far this fall.

Traffic in Syracuse, where the mercury fell to 17, crawled bump-to-bump on a six-lane highway. Slippery road conditions were confined to central and northern New York.

The coldest spot was Dunsville, where the mercury tumbled to 11 degrees above zero, the weather bureau said. State police reported two to four inches of fresh snow in the Saranac Lake-Tupper Lake area. Rochester had a two-inch snowfall.

Temperature readings throughout the state were well below the freezing mark. The weather bureau said temperatures would return to the 20s tonight after climbing into the lower 30s during the day.

Slightly warmer weather was predicted for tomorrow. Canton, in northern New York, had an overnight low of 14. A low of 16 was reported at Oneonta, Binghamton, Massena, Watertown and Rochester.

Syracuse's 17 was a new record for the date. The previous Nov. 22 low was 18 in 1932. Other overnight lows included: Utica and Rome, 17; Elmira and Buffalo, 18; Schenectady, 19; Albany and Poughkeepsie, 21; Glens Falls, 23, and Dunkirk, 24.

New York city reported a low of 26, the coldest of two degrees since last March 20.

Miss Alice Hintermister, 73, of Ithaca was killed last night when the automobile in which she was riding and a truck collided on a slippery highway near Richfield Springs.

Traffic bogged down on hills outside Syracuse because of a thin layer of ice and snow. One Binghamton-Utica bus was delayed two hours on Paris Hill near New Hartford, also in the Utica area.

State police said sanding crews were active in all trouble spots.

Two Men Injured In Walkkill Crash

John S. Toohay, 29, of Sunny-croft Ranch, Walkkill, received a possible fractured spine, and Vivian Thomas, 40, of R.D. 1, Walkkill, received minor body injuries in an automobile accident Sunday midnight near Walkkill, state police revealed today.

Toohay, listed by troopers as the driver of a 1937 sedan which failed to make a turn on a county road and crashed into a tree, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh, where his condition was reported today as "fair."

Thomas, a passenger, was treated at the scene, troopers said.

Woman's 36-Year Fight for 'Unification' Made Your Thanksgiving Day Holiday

Thank the long-burning zeal of a woman for Thanksgiving Day as a nation-wide holiday. She was Sarah Joseph Hale, born in Newport, N. H., in 1778. One of America's first "lady editors," she put on an unrelenting campaign for a national day of thanksgiving for 36 years. Here's the story of Thanksgiving and Sarah Hale's remarkable victory.

The origin of Thanksgiving as a day for rejoicing and prayer is generally attributed to William Bradford, first governor of Massachusetts Colony. He proclaimed Dec. 13, 1621, as a day on which the Pilgrims at Plymouth should thank God for a bountiful harvest and for their victory over great hazards in establishing new homes in the wilderness. The Plymouth celebration actually lasted a week, during which Massasoit, friendly chief of the Wampanoag Indians, and his tribe joined in the feast of gratitude. They contributed venison, cranberries and oysters, which they considered a great delicacy. It is said that this is the origin of the tradition that there be invited guests at every Thanksgiving table.

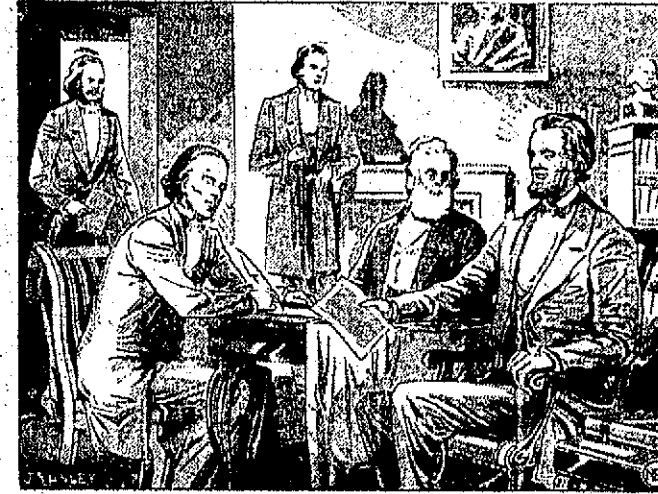

The first "last Thursday in November" Thanksgiving for all the states was proclaimed by George Washington. At the request of Congress he named Thursday, Nov. 26, 1789, a day to "acknowledge with grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording an opportunity to establish a Constitution . . .

Never again, until 1863, did the country as a whole celebrate Thanksgiving. In 1827, Sarah Hale was "editor" of the Ladies Magazine in Boston. She wrote an editorial urging a unified Thanksgiving Day—"the same as the Fourth of July." That was the start of her incredible campaign. She continued to promote the idea.

But from 1844 on, Mrs. Hale really put on the heat. She had then been editor of Godey's Lady's Book for nine years. Year after year she wrote to governors of states and territories, urging state Thanksgiving Days. To put pressure on them, she wrote thousands of letters to senators, congressmen and other influential people.

By 1852, she had won 29 states and all territories. But their days were variously dated. Sarah Hale plugged at unification in her magazine. Her letters bombarded Presidents Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan. They said "No." Then—Lincoln and the Civil War. In 1861, she begged for a "Thanksgiving Day of peace." The plea failed. It failed in 1862. But next year, Sarah Hale won. Lincoln proclaimed Thursday, Nov. 26, 1863. From then to 1939, most presidents named the "last Thursday." In 1939, FDR changed it to the "next to last Thursday." Confusion and resentment resulted. So in 1941 Congress established the fourth Thursday in November as Thanksgiving Day, a legal holiday that needs no proclamation.

Overflow Crowd, Best Show Indicated for Ahavath Ball

Indications pointed today to an overflow crowd at the municipal auditorium, Wednesday for the 13th annual ball of Congregation Ahavath Israel, featuring Sammy Kaye's band and an all-star show from WOR with Jan Murray as master of ceremonies.

Demand for tickets all along the Hudson valley by fans of the famous Kaye reveals that the Thanksgiving eve turnout will be so vast that a building several times the size of the auditorium would be needed to accommodate all who would like to attend.

General Chairman Herman G. Rafalowsky told a reporter that he and members of the ball committee have received requests for tickets from far and near, which augurs for a record attendance at this year's event, planned from the beginning to surpass any of the functions of the past 12 years.

Demand Stars
Rafalowsky, a veritable dynamo when it comes to producing under pressure, is the envy of many a professional, according to N. M. Abramson of WOR Entertainment Bureau, who furnishes talent for the nation's top-flight night clubs along New York's Great White Way and leading radio programs.

"He's as hard to please as any client," said the dean of the entertainment business who owns the contract of many a star, "because he really knows what his public demands and always winds up with a program studded with the brightest names in show business."

"Although producing shows is an avocation with the Kingston clothier, he could turn his talents to the entertainment field without any fear of making a mistake. Herman is forever the buyer, no agent can sell him. He knows what he wants and contracts for it."

It's no secret that Ahavath Israel pays top prices for its shows, and this year's is costing more than ever. And there's no explanation needed when those familiar with entertainers look over the names on the program. There's Jan Murray, the emcee whose name has been in lights over some of the nation's leading clubs; the Lane Brothers, musical comedy stars recently on the Milton Berle television show; Valaida Snow, songstress of international renown; The Allens, billed as the Nutcracker in Dancing and the Five Harpists, who have played the Palace and all other leading theatres of the country.

A Sparkling Bill
And, with Sammy Kaye and his ensemble of musicians and entertainers to broaden the bill, the whole night's affair should be a sparkling presentation of the tops in music, comedy, dancing and all the rest that goes to make up what Rafalowsky plans—the best show ever arranged for Kingston.

Committees working under the direction of Chairman Rafalowsky have been tireless in their efforts, according to his reports, and he praised them highly for their co-operation. However, a chat with any one of them will reveal that he is the inspiration and the sparkplug moving the entire Ahavath Israel promotion, despite his personal building project brought on by the removal of the Broadway crossing.

When a reporter asked him where he got the energy and time for outside projects he advised, "The proceeds from Ahavath Israel ball are divided among non-sectarian charitable causes as well as for religious purposes. Every good American should be able to find time for charity and his church no matter what his religion may be. There's a great satisfaction in this work. It helps keep America free."

Researchers Urge State Raise Hospital Care by 25 Per Cent

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Columbia University researchers urge that New York state raise its hospital care budget by 25 per cent from the present $87,000,000 appropriation.

The recommendation is made in a 368-page study which took 15 months under supervision of Dr. Eli Ginzberg, of Columbia's graduate business school.

Published in book form under the title, "A pattern for hospital care," the university study was authorized by the New York State Joint Hospital Survey and Planning Commission, a state agency.

The report, released yesterday, was designed to cover questions of hospital care as they affect patient, doctor, hospital, government and community.

Ginzberg and his staff recommended the following boosts: For mental disease, $13,500,000, including $2,500,000 for mental hygiene clinics; $3,500,000 for tuberculosis; $2,800,000 for chronic ill; and $3,800,000 for expanding services to ambulatory patients.

The study urged the state, hospitals and medical profession to do more for patients still able to walk, by augmenting clinical and diagnostic services.

"At the present time a major challenge to the intelligence and integrity of the medical profession, hospital leaders and the community at large,"

He added: "We are convinced that one of the most constructive actions that can be taken to improve the level of hospital and medical care . . . is to expand and improve the services, particularly of a diagnostic nature, which are made available to ambulatory patients."

Caution Is Urged
The study suggested that general hospitals use "great caution before undertaking new construction," under the $140,000,000 expansion program proposed by the commission in 1945.

The commission proposed that the general hospitals increase facilities from 37,000 beds to about 71,000.

Instead, Ginzberg said, such hospitals which normally care for short-term diseases and injuries, should consider "expanding services to provide more care for ambulatory patients."

One recommendation was that the state develop 20 clinics for walking patients "at a sum not to exceed $50,000 per clinic" and provide yearly subsidies for their first four-year operations.

At any rate, the study said, since the commission prepared its master plan for expansion, the Veterans Administration and other sources have provided about 5,000 new general hospital beds and patients have reduced the lengths of their hospital stays.

On the question of replacing obsolete facilities, which the study also discussed, Ginzberg said it cost about $160,000,000 to replace 12,700 beds in non-fire resistant hospitals.

Possibilities Are Suggested
Several long-range possibilities were suggested which "may go far to relieve the situation, if not to cure it outright," including federal, state and municipal aid and a federal public works program "in case of a serious depression."

Meanwhile, Ginzberg urged "first priority" for 2,400 of these beds in hospitals "mostly in upstate New York, which are not only non-fire resistant, but are in buildings, not originally built for hospital use."

The report said Rochester and Syracuse had the highest percentages of non-acceptable beds in municipal hospitals, the researchers said.

The report cited the Buffalo, New York city metropolitan and Long Island areas as having the smallest percentages of non-acceptable beds—12, 11 and 10 per cent, respectively.

Included in the metropolitan area are Westchester, Putnam, Dutchess, Rockland, Orange, Ulster and Sullivan counties.

The study said "it might be desirable for the state to construct 450 additional beds for patients with tuberculosis in Buffalo and Albany," but added:

"We do not consider such construction urgent, at least not on the basis of current trends."

Dr. Dorrance died suddenly last night at his home. One of the first plastic surgeons, beginning such work in World War I, Dr. Dorrance was chief surgeon at the American Oncologic Hospital, Philadelphia, where he was medical director from 1922, and on the board of directors. "PUBLIC FUNERAL" FOR NAVY YARD CLOSING—Most funerals occur after the subject has died. This one to Long Beach, Calif., was staged in an effort to prevent a death. The public funeral parade protested Defense Department plans to close the Long Beach Naval Shipyard next June 30. The mock funeral bier was followed by 5000 employees and their sympathizers. The shipyard will be closed as part of Secretary Louis Johnson's economy cut-back in defense spending.

Accidental Deaths, 13

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—The number of accidental deaths reported in New York state in the fall hunting season so far totaled 13 today following the shooting of a Massena restaurant owner. The latest victim was Dragon Obretenoff, 52, a native of Bulgaria, while hunting in the town of Madrid in St. Lawrence county yesterday, he was struck by the charge from the gun of another hunter. Of the total hunting deaths this season, four were drownings. The others were accidental shootings.

Drivers Are Asked To Watch Out for Winter Hazards

Albany, Nov. 22—Early scattered snowfalls in New York state usher in winter driving hazards which call for the full cooperation of the state's more than five million licensed drivers. Motor Vehicle Commissioner Clifford J. Fletcher cautioned today. Although winter officially is still one month away, its highway dangers are already at hand, drivers were advised.

"When the first blizzards come, most drivers will stay off the highways, wherever possible," Commissioner Fletcher said. "But the first light snowfall may be deceiving, because drivers are not conditioned to the sudden new risks which arise."

Research, he said, has yielded these safe winter driving rules as the most basic:

1. Get to know the "feel" of the road, and drive at conservative speeds.
2. Follow other vehicles at safe distances, lengthening the space between your car and the vehicle ahead to allow ample "safety margin."
3. Use tire chains when driving on icy and snowy road surfaces. On passenger cars, they can reduce braking distances 40 to 50 per cent, while on trucks they give even greater self-help in increasing necessary traction. 4. Apply brakes lightly, intermittently. Use a minimum of pressure on the foot pedal, to prevent wheel from locking and thereby losing directional control of the vehicle. 5. Keep windshield and windows clear of outside snow and ice, free from inside fog and frost. "Special care must be exercised when approaching crossroads or street intersections, when nearing railroad grade crossings, and when seeing pedestrians about to cross a roadway," Mr. Fletcher said.

Popular Dancers
Set for Ahavath
Israel Stage Show

"The Nutmost in Dancing," featuring the celebrated Albins, Andy and Dolores, will be another star attraction on the stage show for the Congregation Ahavath Israel held Wednesday night, Thanksgiving Eve, at the municipal auditorium.

A recent smash hit at the Palace Theatre in New York city, the Albins are currently appearing at the Cotillion Room of the Hotel Pierre.

A reviewer of the Billboard magazine, seeing the Albins at the Palace had this to say about their act:

"The Albins were the hit of the show. Their knockabout dance routines pulled top laughs from their walk-on and kept building all the way until yocks followed yocks. The tiny girl made an excellent foil for her muscular, long-haired partner."

The Albins, a comedy dance team, which works as hard to make the audience laugh as the usual ballroom dancers work to keep from laughing, is labeled as one of the best acts of its kind.

The team, with countless new tricks, wacky cutting-up and hat a follow-through to the lifts and spins that is nothing short of brilliant.

One of the Albins' most popular offerings is when Andy does an imitation of Boris Karloff doing Frankie Sinatra.

Other features of the highly-praised act include a ballroom dance team's nightmare and an interpretation of ballroom torp-sidore which is one of the funniest acts of its kind.

The Albins, hailed throughout the country where they have appeared at leading nightclubs, also were recently featured at Lou Walter's famous Latin Quarter in New York.

Dorothy Raymer, writing in the Miami Daily News, wrote "The Albins, Andy and Dolores, justly their reputation as 'the Nutmost in Dancing.' Andy looks like a Tarzan, long hair and all. He swings his tiny partner into the wildest burlesque of ballroom adagio ever seen. When funnier postures are struck, the Albins will strike them. All their awkwardness isn't accidental. Their acid stops, marvelous lifts and spectacular twirls are the result of unusual skill and timing."

Other all-star acts booked through the WOR Entertainment Bureau, Nat M. Abramson, manager, include the following:

The Lane Brothers in their "Believe It or Not" show; Valinda Snow, the popular international songstress; Dan Murray, new comedy sensation who will be the master of ceremonies; and a surprise specialty act.

Today's Business Mirror

By RADAR WINGET
(For SAM DAWSON)

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—If you want to stay in business, you've got to make money.

That's being driven home to businessmen more today than at any time since the war. And they are searching earnestly for old and new ways to increase their earnings and cut costs.

A growing number of businesses have learned the stark fact—"no profits, no business."

So far this year there have been more than 8,000 commercial and industrial failures throughout the country. For the same period of last year failures ran to a little under 4,500. And in 1947, they were just under 3,000. The figures come from Dunn & Bradstreet.

Small firms are the hardest hit. Bankruptcies with liabilities under $5,000 at present are running at the highest rate since March of 1942.

There's one ray of optimism in the gloom, however. A survey of the memberships of the Los Angeles Credit Managers' Association and the New York Credit Men's Association disclosed that 70 per cent of those replying don't expect any great change in the trend.

That might seem a bit on the negative side, but at least they don't expect any increase in the number of failures in the next six months. Some of them thought there might be a slight drop in the total.

Business isn't sitting down with more hopes than the sheriff does not padlock its door. There is a lot being done about it.

The Controllership Foundation Inc., the research arm of the Controllers Institute of America, in a report says: "Typical aggressive action to sustain profits includes the increasing selling effort, the improvement of products to make them more attractive to purchasers, and cutting costs of manufacturing and distribution."

One cost cutting method is catching thieves. Some stores deliberately remove a package from a shipment to see whether it will be reported by an employee. Automatic alarms and electric eyes are used in warehouses. Some found big savings in locking executive telephones at night to prevent unauthorized long distance telephone calls.

Others put phony names and addresses in their mailing lists to test whether a rival company is stealing their roster of customers.

Then there is the long-term promotional approach to increase business. J. Lowell Lafferty, who is the vice president of the Republic National Bank of Dallas, Texas, outlined student education plans of the American Bankers Association.

"The forward looking banker sees that the real opportunity to build public understanding of banking is through education. By so doing, the banker will perform a true public service and help students have a better chance for security and success," Lafferty said.

The Bank of Boston at Boston, Ill., has a "teen town" savings department for students.

The First National Bank of Greenville, Miss., sponsors a radio program staged by students and teachers.

The American Trust Co. of South Ben, Ind., sends congratulatory telegrams to graduates.

The credit management division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association is trying to set up a nationwide method for department stores to figure how much their credit departments cost and why. They are really cutting it fine.

They are getting answers to such questions as: How many keys does the operator punch on a billing machine per bill? They also have discovered that in certain stores the legal expense for credit sales per transaction is .0072 of a cent while the cost per account billed is .0161 of a cent. That's meat and drink to an efficiency expert.

The N.R.D.G.A. also is trying to get retailers and manufacturers together to plan the dates for showing merchandise so that selling and buying can be coordinated to hit peak consumer demand.

And there are the direct appeals to build up business. National Hotel Week just closed on that theme. The National Hotel Association said the public should know that American hotels have nearly completed a $2,000,000,000 rebuilding and refurbishing program. They are ready for business. And to stress that, individual hotels during their "week" selected local beauty queens and a "Miss American Hotels." They figure that will boost business.

The National Association of Ice Industries is well on the way to raising a half million dollar campaign fund to increase the sale of manufactured ice next year. Right now they are selling at the annual rate of $100,000,000. They want to sell even more.

And the big beauty industry is again beating the drums to get the girls to make themselves more attractive. Two of the biggest current campaigns is to sell women on the idea that their hair should be more "elastic."

All of these things add up to long as you are making money, more money in the till. And as you can't go broke.

When saving up for old age, be sure to lay up a few pleasant thoughts.—Sales-Maker.

Police Head Has Heart Ailment

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Capt. John A. Gaffney, state police superintendent, is in a hospital here with a mild heart condition it was learned today.

Gaffney has been at Harkness Pavilion of Presbyterian Hospital for the past six weeks. He is expected to return to his home in Westchester county tomorrow.

An official source in Albany said there was no reason to believe that Gaffney would retire or resign.

"This source said Gaffney would 'take it easy at home for another month' before returning to his desk."

Gaffney, 50, has been head of the state police since August, 1943. The state employees' retirement system in Albany said Gaffney had not filed an application for a pension.

In the capital also, state police headquarters had no comment. Gaffney, a native of New York city, joined the force as a trooper Jan. 1, 1923. He rose through the ranks to command of the 900-man organization.

He was commanding Troop K, with headquarters at Hawthorne, when he was made acting superintendent by Governor Dewey on Aug. 23, 1943. He was appointed superintendent Dec. 22, 1943. He succeeded Maj. John A. Warner in the post, which pays $12,500 a year.

During Gaffney's absence, the force is being commanded by George M. Searle, the deputy superintendent.

Fresh Crabmeat

Fresh crabmeat makes a delicious salad. For a pound of fish use a stalk of celery (finely chopped), a green onion (finely chopped), and some thin strips of green pepper. Mix these well and add mayonnaise that has been flavored with a little finely chopped fresh herbs (such as parsley and chervil). Line a salad bowl with crisp greens and mound the crabmeat in the center. Garnish with slices of sweet pickle, pimiento, olives, or radishes.

Cauliflower is now a bargain. But no food bargain can be better than its tastes. Select only white compact heads, avoiding those which are spotty or bruised or with flowerets spread out. A 2- to 3-pound head is enough for 4 persons.

Soak in cold salted water for 1/2 hour before cooking. Cook in covered kettle in boiling salted water. Be careful not to overcook to prevent it from turning mushy or yellow.

James Beard, who has just written one of the most readable American guides to finer eating, "The House Cook Book," contributes two of his best recipes to this column in order to make American home dining a greater pleasure.

Baked Cauliflower
(Serves 4)

One head cauliflower broken into flowerets, cooked and drained, 4 tablespoons butter, grated Parmesan cheese, 1/4 cup crumbs, salt, pepper.

Cook cauliflower flowerets in boiling salted water 15 minutes. Drain and arrange in a casserole. Dot with butter and sprinkle liberally with grated Parmesan cheese, and season to taste with salt and black pepper. Sprinkle with crumbs and additional grated cheese. Place in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 10 minutes or until lightly browned.

Cold Cauliflower Potatoes
(Serves 6)

Cook and drain a large head of cauliflower. Chill thoroughly. Arrange on a bed of greens and cover with the following sauce: one cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, 2 teaspoons capers, 4 tablespoons red caviar, salt, pepper, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Blend the ingredients together and taste for seasoning. Allow it to stand for one hour before pouring over chilled cauliflower.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Canned blended orange and grapefruit juice, ready-to-eat cereal, French toast, butter or fortified margarine, jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Corn and green pepper pudding, whole wheat bread, butter or fortified margarine, ginger pears, tea, milk.

DINNER: Pan-broiled chopped round steak patties, parsley butter, country-fried potatoes, baked cauliflower, enriched crusty bread, butter or fortified margarine, celery and raw carrot sticks, compote of mixed stewed dried fruits, chocolate wafers, coffee, milk.

Use Military Tactics
On Play of a Hand

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
American's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

Whenever I go to Washington, I always enjoy my luncheon date with Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, the former Adjutant General of the Army. Now that the general has retired, he has adopted two hobbies, one farming, and the other, obtaining scholarships for American war orphans.

One must admire the active minds of the men who have handled our gigantic military undertakings. When I am with one of these men, who is also a card player, I enjoy laying out a hand and discussing the tactics of the play with him, as compared to military strategy.

Take today's hand, for example. On the opening lead of the deuce of diamonds you play the five-spot from dummy and East puts on the queen. Would you win this trick?

Before you say yes or no, let us look over the situation. We know that we have a losing diamond, and if the ace of hearts is in the wrong side, we have two losing hearts. That is nothing to worry about if we find the king of clubs right—but the military man says, "Nothing is sure to be right. Plan your defense and attack on the assumption that everything is wrong."

Therefore we must keep West out of the lead. Let East hold the first trick. He will return a diamond and you take it with the ace. Now pick up the trumps and lead the queen of clubs. East wins.

A. W. Butler, 79,
Dies at Princeton Inn

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 22 (AP)—Arthur Wellman Butler, 79, retired investment banker and amateur astronomer, died yesterday of a heart attack at Princeton Inn.

Butler, who had homes in New York city and Mt. Kisco, N. Y., was visiting relatives here.

Born in Yonkers, N. Y., he was the son of William Allen Butler, a president of the American Bar Association, and a grandson of Benjamin F. Butler, U. S. attorney general.

A Princeton University graduate, Butler entered Wall Street brokerage circles in partnership with his older brother, George P.

Butler, who served for a time as governor of the New York Stock Exchange.

An enthusiastic amateur astronomer, Butler installed a complete observatory at his Mt. Kisco estate. At the time it was installed, the telescope was bigger than the one in the Harvard observatory.

He leaves his widow, the former Anna Foster Robinson, a daughter, Mrs. Alexander Orr, Victor of New Haven, Conn., and four grandchildren. His son, Arthur W. Butler, Jr., was killed in 1935 in a hunting accident while a student at Princeton.

Whenever I go to Washington, I always enjoy my luncheon date with Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, the former Adjutant General of the Army. Now that the general has retired, he has adopted two hobbies, one farming, and the other, obtaining scholarships for American war orphans.

One must admire the active minds of the men who have handled our gigantic military undertakings. When I am with one of these men, who is also a card player, I enjoy laying out a hand and discussing the tactics of the play with him, as compared to military strategy.

Take today's hand, for example. On the opening lead of the deuce of diamonds you play the five-spot from dummy and East puts on the queen. Would you win this trick?

Before you say yes or no, let us look over the situation. We know that we have a losing diamond, and if the ace of hearts is in the wrong side, we have two losing hearts. That is nothing to worry about if we find the king of clubs right—but the military man says, "Nothing is sure to be right. Plan your defense and attack on the assumption that everything is wrong."

Therefore we must keep West out of the lead. Let East hold the first trick. He will return a diamond and you take it with the ace. Now pick up the trumps and lead the queen of clubs. East wins.

Two K.H.S. Vocalists Selected for Solos At Music Festival

Two representatives from Kingston High School's A Cappella Choir were chosen for the solos at the Saturday night concert in Poughkeepsie. The concert culminated two days of a sectional music festival sponsored by the New York State School Music Teachers Association. About 30 local students participated in the chorus and band.

Try-outs for the solos were held with 18 young people in competition. Heather Harrison, soprano, was selected to do the solo in "Thanks Be to Thee by Bach"; and Donald Sweetney, tenor, for the Russian Pienic number.

Twenty-eight schools were represented at the festival. At the director's banquet in the Nelson House Saturday evening, Dr. O. Lincoln Igou of New Paltz State Teachers College faculty, was the guest speaker.

BRASS
by
JAMES H. WINTERS
Nearly all of the peddles of which we spoke in last week's column, are made mostly of brass. That is, the part that shows is made of brass and believe it or not, many of them are made right here in your own city, Kingston, N. Y. Few Kingstonians know that right here in their own city is the largest piano hardware manufacturing plant in the world. This is the Charles Ramsey Corp. of 35 Gage Street and is most ably managed by Mr. Henry Kaprellian of 281 Flatbush avenue. Specializing in only a few metal parts of the piano this organization is able to turn out these parts more efficiently and cheaply than anyone else. The employee roll of this plant may not be so large but there is lots of machinery in the building. Thousands upon thousands of sets of pedals, hinges and pressure bars go out of this factory all over the country. Kingston should be proud of this industry as anything that is the biggest and best in the world is something to brag about.

Our Wurlitzer and Winter & Company pianos are all equipped with this Charles Ramsey Corporation product. These too are two of the largest piano manufacturers in the world. Drop in at 338 Fair street and see these beautiful new instruments that contain Kingston's products. Also, when you look at your present piano you may say to yourself "And just think, these pedals were probably made right here in Kingston."

Metropolitan Opera Opens 65th Season

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Everybody got into the act last night as the Metropolitan Opera opened its 65th season.

On-stage, the Richard Strauss women-dominated opera "Der Rosenkavalier" went off smoothly with Riss Stevens, Eleanor Steber and others singing out their arias to six solidly packed tiers of opera goers.

Between acts, the front and would-be great of society put on their own show for the television cameras.

Those who weren't starred in either performance lined the corridors and pointed, oohed and aahed at celebrities on and off the stage.

One minute, the opera house at 39th street and Broadway was a gloomy, deserted cavern. Its only light came from a single, feeble bulb above the orchestra pit.

In the next, it became a glittering, brilliant arena, with jeweled patrons strung in a horseshoe pattern around the colorfully laid-out stage.

But the bar was never dim. And never quiet.

ened openings in other years, were few.

Mrs. Betty Henderson, who once gained fame by holding her leg onto a table, was on hand. If she entered the bar, she did it discreetly.

Husky, handsome Met tenor Lauritz Melchior, and lovely, blonde soprano Dorothy Kirsten were the chief target of photographers and gapping celebrity hunters.

Another center of attraction was Federal Judge Harold R. Medina. A year ago, few knew the opera-loving jurist as anything but a capable judge. He's nationally known now as the trial judge for the 11 convicted Communist leaders.

He posed obligingly for pictures and then told Mrs. Medina: "Now let's get upstairs."

Critics found "Der Rosenkavalier" satisfying, if not epic. Miss Steber, singing the role of the Marschallin for the first time at the Met, gave what was described as a "suddened and maybe even discouraged" characterization.

The audience kept its hands in its lap for the first act. In the second, Emanuel List as Ochs finally won the evening's first bravo.

Kingston W.C.T.U. Votes Christmas Gifts to Groups

Kingston W.C.T.U. met with Mrs. Anna Goodsell, 29 Green street, Thursday afternoon. During the business meeting the union voted to give Christmas gifts to the Day Nursery, Christmas Cheer Fund and Castle Point Hospital.

Mrs. O. B. Smith gave excerpts from "Public Health—Your Concern and Mine," as issued by the W.C.T.U. department of health and temperance.

Mrs. Smith said, "Never was the nation as health conscious with its focus in the interest of heart, cancer, TB, polio and mental health. Nor is there a nation so organized to protect and guard the welfare of its people as our own United States." However she continued by questioning "Why this great army of learned and intelligent workers in the interests of health stand either blindfolded with hands tied while hospitals, asylums, orphanages and cemeteries are being filled with the victims of alcohol?"

Mrs. Elizabeth Conaro spoke about Dr. Frank C. Laubach, who is considered by many to be one of the greatest men in the world today, because of his world-wide leadership in campaigns against illiteracy among millions in the wilds of Asia, Africa and South America. Dr. Laubach teaches illiterates by mass instruction and thousands learn to read in a few weeks. Mrs. Conaro explained. He was one of the outstanding speakers at the national W.C.T.U. convention held in Philadelphia in August. His subject was, "How the World Can be Saved if—"

Mrs. Conaro reported that he has been affiliated with the W.C.T.U. ever since he can remember and continues to be an honorary member.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

WHO PAYS THE BABY SITTER?
The modern institution known as baby-sitting has brought this question: "Would you be good enough to say which one of us should pay for the baby-sitter when I have a date with the child's widowed mother? I believe if etiquette would sanction my paying this item I'd stand more chance of taking the mother out oftener. Up to now she has insisted on paying the 'sitter.'"

Correctly, the mother should pay for the "sitter." Whether or not you might be permitted on occasion to do this, depends, I think, upon the seriousness of your intentions and how often you go out.

A Natural Visit
Dear Mrs. Post: Mother and I disagree. It concerns visiting my future in-laws. I'm a nurse and don't get much time off. I had a week last summer and spent some of it, by invitation, with the family of my fiance. He says here to see us rather frequently until he got his new job at home. I'm going to get two weeks off this winter and his family have invited me again so we can see each other. Mother thinks another visit is too much and might be criticized by some of our friends. (They have even invited Mother to come too, but she can't very well go.) So now I'm going to be penalized and in my opinion, without good reason. What is your opinion?

Answer: I see nothing wrong in your accepting this family's invitation to spend your vacation with them. In fact, I find your wanting to go very natural—and proper.

Second Wedding Present
Dear Mrs. Post: Doesn't the opinion held by most people that there is no obligation to send wedding presents a second time apply to the bride's friends rather than those of the groom? For example: My brother was married; it didn't last long and his wife up and left, leaving most of the wedding gifts behind. Most of them had been sent by our people, anyway. Now my brother is marrying again and I've heard some of these same people say they weren't going to send gifts to his second bride. I think this most unfair to her, as she doesn't even want the first ones because of their association.

Answer: I agree with you. They certainly would not have to give as handsome a present the second time, but I do think they should give her something.

Did you know that the family of the bridegroom-to-be should call upon the bride's family as soon as the engagement is announced? Mrs. Post explains in length, E-1, "Announcing the Engagement." To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Special Exhibit
Safford & Scudder, Inc., take great pleasure in announcing that they have been appointed as representatives of Ostier, Inc., of Fifth Avenue, New York City. Ostier are exclusive manufacturers and designers of 14 karat and platinum jewelry.

Founded in Vienna, Austria, before the war, Ostier was a by-word among the members of Mittel-Europa's social set in those days, and it was a rare grand duchess who didn't sport one of Marianne Ostier's designs.

Marianne Ostier is the designer and Oliver Ostier, Marianne's husband and business partner, is the manufacturing end.

Ostier designs for Hedy Lamarr and other Hollywood stars, for two of the exclusive stores in New York City, and now for Safford & Scudder.

"Designing jewelry is a woman's job," Mme. Ostier told us recently, "and I am surprised that women don't turn to it more frequently." She believes that the feminine viewpoint is essential in jewelry design. "You see, men, when they design a piece, have a tendency to try to bring out the beauty of the jewel to the exclusion of the beauty of wearer. That is all right if it doesn't go too far, but a woman designer always takes into primary consideration whether a particular piece of jewelry will flatter the woman who is to wear it."

Safford & Scudder will have a special display of jewelry by Ostier starting the week of November 21st, and we expect to have Mme. and Mr. Ostier with us on November 26th.

We extend to you a cordial invitation to visit our store during this week, and see the lovely designs and if you have something in mind, Mme. Ostier will be very pleased to make up a design for you, to fit your personality.

Mrs. Parks Is Granted Divorce in Minnesota

Shakopee, Minn., Nov. 22 (AP)—A divorce was granted two weeks ago to Mrs. June Alworth Parks, 32 year old blonde Duluth heiress, from Robert Parks, records in the district court here disclose.

Parks, 32 year old former New York orchestra leader, had filed suit for divorce in Duluth about three months ago and named Charles (Red) Ruffing, former New York Yankees baseball pitcher, as the key figure. His complaint charged Mrs. Parks with improper conduct and excessive drinking. He had asked "substantial alimony," custody of their minor adopted son, all joint personal property and their home.

Mrs. Parks' counter suit, filed in Duluth, was moved here through change of venue. The divorce was granted Nov. 7. Documents filed in the case were ordered sealed by the court.

Judge Joseph Moriarty of Shakopee, in a telephone interview, said Mrs. Parks was awarded custody of the couple's adopted son. He did not disclose terms of the property settlement.

Mrs. Parks' grandfather, the late Marshall H. Alworth, Duluth iron mining operator, left an estate of more than $6,000,000 when he died in 1942. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royal D. Alworth of Duluth.

Early Thanksgiving Feast
Santa Monica, Calif., Nov. 22 (AP)—Thanksgiving came early for a flock of pelicans and seagulls who gobbled up a deckload of sardines from a fishing boat here while the captain and crew were ashore. The boat, Bunkie, out of Santa Barbara, had tied up for refueling. Hundreds of hungry pelicans and gulls swooped down and gorged themselves until many were unable to fly. They floated around the harbor, listing blissfully. Fishermen on the pier said several hundred pounds of sardines must have been consumed.

Two-Ton Tony Galento Headlines Next Wrestling Card on Nov. 29

Ex-Heavy Contender In Local Debut

"Two-Ton" Tony Galento, the fabulous boxing character out of East Orange, N. J., who transferred his talents to wrestling after making an unsuccessful bid for the world's heavyweight championship, will headline the November 29 wrestling card at the municipal auditorium. Promoter Bill Johnston said today.

Galento, the rely poly human barrel who made a shambles of training rules and yet almost shocked the boxing world on June 28, 1939, when he floored champion Joe Louis in the first round, turned to grappling a few years ago and has been a great box-office magnet.

Galento's opponent will be Irish Jack Kelly of Boston, a rough-house character whose style should make a perfect blend with Galento's histrionics.

Knocked by Louis

Champion Joe Louis butchered Galento in four rounds on that night more than 10 years ago, but the Orange, N. J. burke earned almost undying fame by the manner in which he dumped Louis to the canvas. Louis got up after a short count and proceeded to systematically take Galento apart.

Up to and following the Louis bout Galento was one of the more colorful personalities in the boxing game. He was always great "copy" for sports writers and his personal and public activities kept him constantly in the limelight, and hot water, too.

Since turning to wrestling, Galento has stayed with the big timers in the upper boxoffice bracket. He has the style, color and flair associated with the big wrestling names. Not to mention the "bull."

Finkelstein on Card

"The Galento-Kelly headliner marks the resumption of professional wrestling in Kingston on a 'big' basis. Promoter Johnston said, and will be the first show since Primo Carnera attracted an S.R.O. crowd for his local match.

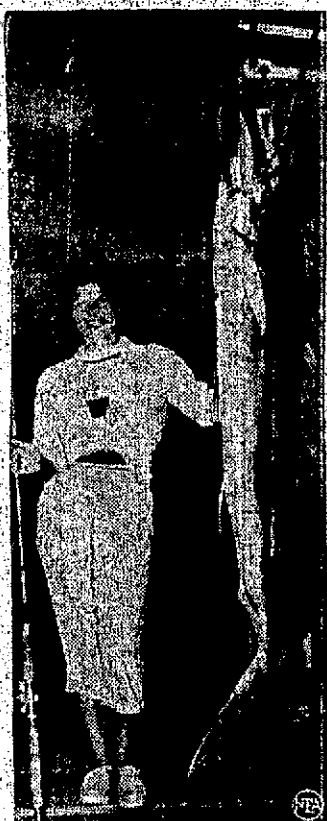

"I'm trying to arrange a real all-star show for the holiday period," the youthful promoter said, "and am working on a card that would include Gene Stanley, Argentine Rocca, the South American sensation, and Primo Carnera."

"Two of the supporting bouts for the Galento-Kelly fracas will feature Harry Finkelstein, the Boston Bud Man, against Baron Rinaldi, a new Italian importation who wrestles in the style of the popular Baron Michele Leone; and Steve Karas, the Detroit scissor expert, and Lew Bernati, another new Italian star.

Complete details will be announced later. Meanwhile, ticket reservations can be made at the Tommy Malmes sport shop.

Jersey City, N. J.—Ernie Durando, 150, Bayonne, knocked out Jimmy Mills, 150, New York (2).

Brooklyn—Mario Moreno, 146, New York, outpointed Chester Ricks, 142, New York (8).

BASS GETS SAILFISH— Mrs. George A. Bass proudly poses with a 54½-pound sailfish which struck her six-thread line while she was taking a nap aboard a boat off Palm Beach, The Oxford, Mich., matron lost a women's world record catch because of a troublesome tooth which took her away from her rod. Her husband reeled the big one in.

Greenberg New Indian Boss

Cleveland, Nov. 22 (AP)—Baseball novice Ellis W. Ryan opened business as the Cleveland Indians' new president today by giving Hank Greenberg a free hand in player transactions.

Then he added: "Some new deals must be made" to strengthen the club.

Ex-Detroit Tiger slugger Greenberg was signed to a three-year contract as general manager of the American League baseball club yesterday shortly after the team was sold to Ryan and other Clevelanders.

Under the Bill Veeck regime just closed, Greenberg was vice president and ran the Indians' farm system.

"Hank and I will work as a team," said Ryan. "But I don't want him to feel that his hands will be tied."

"I haven't discussed the situation with Hank, but I think some deals must be made. We'll have to strengthen the club. I would say right now we're about on a par with New York, Boston and Detroit."

A newcomer to baseball, Ryan also has been promised help from Veeck, the man he succeeded as president.

He said Veeck will accompany him to the major and minor league meetings at New York and Baltimore respectively next month helping out with his trade knowledge.

Three Bowl Bids For Oklahoma U.

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Oklahoma is like a man who has been invited to three Thanksgiving dinners and doesn't know which to accept.

The unbeaten, untied Sooners are top candidates for the Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowl if that college football post-season extravaganza wasn't tied up by an agreement between the Pacific Coast and western conferences.

With the "official" selection yesterday of Ohio State and California as Rose Bowl opponents, the attention of the football world shifted to Oklahoma.

The Sooners, unbeaten in 19 straight games, held a bowl discussion yesterday but which oval they favored to grace by their presence remained a secret.

Coach Bud Wilkinson said the public could not expect an announcement regarding Oklahoma's desires until after the Sooners game against Oklahoma A & M next Saturday.

N.F.A.-Kingston Game Finds Maj. Hoople Straddling Fence With Big Drumstick

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
(Turkey Day Blocker)

Hail and farewell, zillions of gentle readers!

We stand on the brink of the culmination of the 1949 grid season—and on the threshold of Turkey Day feats of gymnastics and digestion.

Egad, it has been veritably a hairpin season, with your prognosticator picking 98.8 per cent correctly on a great many of the more important struggles. (Ed. Note: He's just a little bit foggy with his wording of that one, isn't he?)

Now to the drumstick of our prognostications for the season—the Newburgh Free Academy-Kingston High School game on Thursday.

The Brash Henningway

I must confess a feeling of utter futility in making this momentous selection. Why, you ask? Ever...the Newburgh press recently chronicled that Coach Stan Henningway already has captured the 1949 DUSO championship for the Gorgoos Goldbacks.

It seems that in a brash moment, the youthful mentor predicted that N.F.A. would trounce Kingston soundly and move into the DUSO title "by the front door" and not "the side door."

With all these doors involved we trust you do not get the impression that the boys will be playing postoffice instead of football on Turkey Day.

Egad, I wonder if my good friend, Bill Burke, will even bother to send his team out on the field. A dreadful waste of time, I would say, harrumph!

Man Eat Dog

In view of the frequency of unprecedented upsets, most of which were forecast by your sapient scribe, it would not be surprising on Thanksgiving Day to see the turkey eat the man—haw-haw! And in the case the man happens to be N.F.A.

In the meantime, gentle readers, I am withholding my usual, precise and infallible prediction until I have received assurance that the Kingston boys will show up. I fear that Master Henningway's brash statement may yet return to haunt him. But I must be assured that Bill Burke will be on hand. These are grave problems, indeed.

Notre Dame Leads Poll For 7th Week; California Moves Into Second Place

Oklahoma, Army and Ohio State Trail

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—California has replaced Oklahoma as the runner-up team behind fleet Notre Dame in the Associated Press weekly football poll.

By thumping Stanford, 33-14, to move into the Rose Bowl as the Pacific Coast Conference champion, California took up the rugged task of chasing Notre Dame.

Only a Notre Dame disaster in its remaining games could send California over the top because the Golden Bears finished their regular season against Stanford, last Saturday.

The Fighting Irish from South Bend, Ind., captured 113 of the 151 first place votes from football writers and sportscasters across the nation.

California drew 24, Oklahoma 13, College of the Pacific two and Army one.

Notre Dame has led the poll seven straight weeks since Michigan took the opener. The final vote will be taken next week.

The "big four" of Notre Dame, California, Oklahoma and Army still dominate the picture. They run 1-2-3-4 with California edging past Oklahoma.

Ohio State, California's Rose Bowl foe, won that right by a 7-7 tie with Michigan. They share the big 10 title but Michigan can't go to Pasadena this year according to the regulations. The win boosted Ohio into fifth place in the poll.

Michigan is a strong sixth, followed by Rice and Minnesota. Next come Baylor and Tulane. They ousted Southern Methodist and Virginia from the top ten. Baylor moved up on a 35-21 win over S.M.U. and Tulane bombed Virginia from the unbeaten ranks, 28-14.

Only three teams drew as many

1,000 votes, figured on the basis of 10 for first, nine for second and so on. Notre Dame maintained a comfortable lead with 1,459 to 1,265 for California and 1,173 for Oklahoma.

California, Ohio State, Michigan and Minnesota ended their regular seasons last week. All 10 others in the top 10 finish this week except Notre Dame. The Irish have a Dec. 3 date at Southern Methodist.

A 5-1 Shot and He Lost—

This impressive looking specimen of a black bear, weight 200 pounds, with fur, flanked by Matt Perry and cousin, Joe, at Matt's Crane street garage, was one of five bears encountered by the Perrys in a recent safari to the Adirondacks. The other four are reported still at large in the Adirondacks and Messrs. Perry are not unhappy about the fact. One bear at a time is enough, they say. (Fryman Photo)

Perrys Have Choice of Five Bears, Shoot One — Glad Others Departed

Just Too Many Bears In One Spot, They Say

This could be a helluva bull story, but actually, it involves five black bears and two hunters, and one of the bears is now hanging in front of Matt Perry's garage on Crane street in Kingston.

Matt Perry and his cousin, Joe, ventured into the wilds of the Adirondacks like thousands of other hunters last Saturday, in quest of deer or any other species of wild life that came within the law.

Had they seen just one black bear or just a single, fleeting deer the trip would have been a success. But, imagine their shock and amazement when they saw five black bears charging over a slight knoll. Such extravagant luck as encountered by the Perrys will make other not so fortunate nimrods pale in envy.

The Blow by Blow
As Matt Perry described it: "We were walking up a slight incline when we heard a shot. We figured it was somebody shooting at a deer. And then we looked up the hill and what do you think we saw — five big black bears rolling down toward us."

"To be truthful about it, we were scared to death for a second. Then Joe fired a slug into the leader. They were pretty close and were coming on. The shot scattered the other four but the big fellow we hit kept charging toward us."

"I waited until he was about 20 feet (Ed. Note: wanna bet?) from me and I let him have the second slug. He went down in a second."

Call Is Answered
Firemen answered a call for a slight automobile fire in a garage at 124 Wilbur avenue shortly before 10:30 p. m. Monday and another for an oil stove blaze at 159 Green street at 7:50 a. m. today. Neither resulted in damage.

White ants are not ants, but termites, and the winged ones are not even white.

Vettors Will Endeavor To Forget the Past

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Thanksgiving has haunting memories for the Vetter family, but on that day this year they're going to try to forget.

Little nine-year-old Philip's hand is better. And his mother, Mrs. Geraldine Vetter, 38, gets out of prison today, in time to be home for the dinner.

Last May, she was given a sentence of up to three years for holding Philip's hand over a lighted gas range to punish him on Thanksgiving Day, 1948.

Yesterday, the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court reduced her conviction from second to third degree assault and cut her sentence to the "time already served"—six months.

Philip now has partial use of his hand, although part of his little finger had to be amputated. At his mother's trial, he told the court he "still loves her" and didn't want her to go to jail.

Mrs. Vetter testified she had only tried to frighten the child for taking things from her purse. The father, Frank, said yesterday that the whole family, including two other sons, will be together for "turkey" and all the trimmings Thursday, and try not to remember.

Garner Is 81 Today

Uvalde, Tex., Nov. 22 (AP)—John Nance Garner is 81 today and plans to spend the day shelling pecans. He figures the labor will net him about $150. Garner, who served two terms as vice president of the United States, and he'll get the pecans shell'd and much company down around. He sells the pecans on the local market at 75 cents a pound. Ruddy-faced, white-haired "Cactus Jack" mentioned his birthday plans to an acquaintance yesterday. The acquaintance, Victor Dittmar of the Uvalde News-Leader, found Garner sitting at an old cloth-covered table on a screened porch. His stubby fingers were picking out cracked nuts.

Bar Association Honors 2 Judges, 60 Attend Dinner

Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick and County Judge John M. Cashin were honored by the Ulster County Bar Association at a dinner Monday night at Leher's Restaurant, 240 Boulevard.

Nearly 60 members of the association were present, making the affair one of the largest similar events held by the group.

The two judges were honored for their endorsement by both major political parties and their subsequent re-election to office. The Hon. John T. Loughran, chief judge of the Court of Appeals, came to Kingston from Albany to make the presentation of brief cases to the two men. The presentation was made on behalf of the Ulster County Bar Association. Judge Loughran was introduced by Andrew J. Cook, Jr., president of the association.

Judges Schirick and Cashin responded, expressing their appreciation for the tributes. All speeches were brief.

New Record Is Set
London, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Pan American Airways Clipper Flying Cloud, sliced 13 minutes off the New York-London commercial flying record this morning. Carrying 24 passengers, the plane landed at London airport at 9:20 a. m. (4:20 a. m., E.S.T.), eight hours and 55 minutes after leaving Idlewild Airport, New York. The plane averaged 449 miles an hour. There was a tailwind of 149 miles an hour. The pilot was Capt. Charles Titus of Great Neck, Long Island. The present record time, also established by Pan American clipper, was nine hours eight minutes.

Requiem Services Held
New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Three requiem services were held in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine today for the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, retired bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York. A funeral service was to follow at noon with Bishop Manning's successor, the Rt. Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, officiating. Thirteen other bishops, along with prelates of the Eastern Orthodox Church, were to march in the funeral procession. Clergy of the cathedral staff maintained an all-night vigil at the coffin in front of the great altar. Bishop Manning died last Friday at the age of 83.

Kiwanis Kapers 'Harvest Moon'

One of the featured skits at the Kiwanis Kapers of 1949, which will be presented at the Kingston High School Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday evenings, November 28 and 29, beginning at 8:15 is the "Harvest Moon," a singing act by Mr. and Mrs. Chris Morris. The skits, which were modeled after radio programs, will be most unusual according to the committee. Parts were assigned and the players were allowed to write their own lines. The Kapers are for Kiwanians and their friends and the proceeds will go toward the youth welfare work. (Freeman Photo)

Party Fever: Rustle Fabric, High Color Set for Holiday Hi-Jinks

These dresses for the holidays make the most of high color, rich fabrics. The model (left) wears a "silk" red tulle dress with short-sleeved bodice and skirt drapery that wings out from one side. At right is a cocktail dress of flower-embroidered, bronze-colored brocade with short sleeves, tailored belt and slashed hemline. Styling here is deliberately kept simple to show off the elegance of imported fabric.

New York (NEA) — Dresses that have caught party fever show it by their high color, their sumptuous fabrics. Jewel-like green, lilac, rose, dusty blue, champagne color, bronze and a red called "silk" will brighten the holiday scene. Fashion is favored for the informal party dress that goes to almost any gathering except a ball. Its skirt is full of rustle, its silhouette draped. Sometimes the skirt, as in the case of one "silk" red dress of Molly Parnis' design, stands out from a snug short-sleeved bodice to make a spectacular pouff at one side. Vying with tulle for holiday honors are slipper satins and rich brocades. A cocktail dress of Pauline Trigere's design owes its elegance to a flower-embossed bronze-colored brocade. So handsome is the imported fabric used to make this dress with short sleeves, tailored belt and slashed hemline, that styling is kept simple to show off the elegance of the material.

Wadlin Addresses Wallkill Group

Assemblyman John F. Wadlin speaking at the Wallkill Chamber of Commerce on Monday evening, November 21st, told of one man who asked himself "What have I to be thankful for—the price I pay for the food I eat, the prices I pay for my rent and keep, the silly old way our country is run, and the price for my pleasures when the day is done."

Yes, these are some of the things we can be thankful for—for we have been able to earn these and a whole lot more in a free society under a government of our own making. He then told of the way we all have a part in the making of state laws and of how much assistance he receives from civic minded interested groups such as the Wallkill Chamber of Commerce, who are courteous enough to furnish him with their view point on pending legislation.

He told the club that during the 1949 legislative session 3,109 bills were introduced in the Assembly and 2,673 in the Senate. A total of 5,782. Of these there were 1,198 passed by both houses and sent to the governor.

Governor Dewey signed 858 and he became law and he vetoed 340.

Wadlin said some of these laws passed will be changed next year as we study and learn more of how they effect people. The emphasis in our government is to give to the citizens what they wish. The Citizens have a grave responsibility to temper their desires.

Candidates-Elect To Be Honored

Three members of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church who were elected to office by the Republican party on Election Day will be honored at a combined meeting of the Men's Club and Young Women's Circle of the church at Epworth Hall this evening.

Those honored will be Mayor and Mrs. Oscar V. Newkirk, Alderman and Mrs. Benjamin Storms and Justice of the Peace and Mrs. Harold Macchoudt. The speaker of the evening will be Frederick M. Snyder.

The program committee is T. Hoyt Clancy, president of the Men's Club, Mrs. Harold Clancy, president of the Young Women's Circle; Kenneth Hyatt, Lawrence Jensen, Donald Hyatt, Vernon S. Miller will have charge of the community singing and Raymond Howe, Jr., minister of music of the church will render two vocal solos. There will be an accordion solo by Howard Houghaling with Mrs. Raymond C. Ingersoll at the piano. Also on the program will be motion pictures and refreshments will be served by the W.S.C.S.

Now They Claim Parachute

Moscow, Nov. 22 (AP)—A Russian inventor of the world's first parachute, the Soviet armed forces newspaper Red Star said today. The inventor, G. Kotelnikov, designed the chute in 1911, said the newspaper, and all present-day parachutes are patterned according to his principles. Kotelnikov died five years ago. (The Encyclopedia Britannica records successful parachute jumps from balloons as early as 1797 in Paris. That parachute, of course, wasn't too good and wobbled quite a bit. But men kept on designing new parachutes and jumping out of balloons until 1912, when, according to the encyclopedia, a Captain Berry made the first successful jump from an airplane in St. Louis, Mo. That, of course, was a year after Red Star said Kotelnikov designed the chute.)

One ton of scrap iron is said to equal five tons of ore, coal, and limestone.
